BOIL IT DOWN.

JAMES G. HATCHITT, P. M.

Whatever you have to say my friend, Whether witty, or grave, or gay, Condense as much as ever you can, And say in the repliest way ; And whether you write of rural affairs, Or particular things in town, Just take a word of friendly udvice-Boil it down.

For if you go spluttering over a page, When a couple of lines would de, Your butter is spread so much you see, That the bread looks plainly through. So when you have a story to tell, And would like a little renown, To make quite sure of your wish my friend, Boil it down.

When writing an article for the press, Whether prose or verses, just try To utter your thoughts in the fewest words, And let them be crisp and dry; And when it is finished as you suppose It is done exactly brown. Just look it over again, and then Boil it down.

For editors do not like to print
An article lazily long.
And the general reader does not cars

For a couple of yards of song. So gather your wits in the smallest space If you'd win the nuthor's crown, And every time you write, my friend, Boil it duwn.

Is OUR MOON INDABITED ?- But here the question is naturally suggested whether our own moon, which is but a quarter of n million of miles from us, ought not lirst to be examined for signs of life, or, at least, of being fitted for the support of life. When the telescope was first invented, it is certain that astrono mers were more hopeful of recognizing such signs in the moon than in any other celestial body. As telescopes of greater and greate power were constructed, our satellite wa searched with a more and more eager scrutiny. And many a long year elapsed before astrono-nuers would accept the conclusion that the moon's surface is wholly unlitted for the support of any of those forms of life with which we are familiar upon earth. That the belief in lunar men prevailed in the popular mind long after astronomers had abandoned it, is shown by the eager credulity with which the story o Sir John Herschel's supposed observations of the customs and manners of the Lunnrians was accepted even among well-educated men. Who can forget the gravity with which that mos umazing hoax was repeated in all quarters? It was, indeed, ingeniously contrived. The anxiety of Sir John Herschel to secure the assistance of King William, and the care with which "our sailor-king" inquired whether the interest of nantical astronomy would be advanced by the proposed inquiries; the plansible explanation of the mode of observation depending, we were gravely assured, upon the transfusion of light; the trembling muxiety of Herschel and his fellow-workers as the moment arrived when their search was to com mence; the flowers, resembling poppies, which first rewarded their scrutify; and the final introduction upon the scene of those winged beings—not, strictly speaking, men, nor properly to be called ungels-to whom Hersche assigned the generic appellation, Vespertilion, Homo, or Batmen. All these things, and many others equally amusing, were described with marvelous gravity, and with an attention to details reminding one of the description in Gulliver's Travels. One can hardly wonder, then, that the narrative was received in many quarters with unquestioning faith, nor, per haps, even at the simplicity with which (as Sir John Herschel himself relates) well-meaning persons planned measures for sending missionaries "among the poor benighted Luna

Yet astronomers have long known full certainly that no forms of life, such as we are familiar with, can exist upon the moon. They know that if our satellite has no atmosphere of all, that atmosphere must be so limited in ex tent that no creatures we are nequainted with could live in it. They know that she has no oceans, seas, rivers or lakes, neither clouds nor rains, and that if she had, there would be no winds to waft moisture from place to place or to cause the clouds to drop fatness upon the lunar fields. They know, also, that the moon's surface is subjected ulternately to n cold far more intense than that which binds our aretic regions in everlasting frost, and to a heat compared with which the fierce moon of a tropical day is as the freshness of a spring morning They search only over the lunar disc for the signs of volcanic action, feeling well assured that no traces of the existence of living crea tures will ever be detected in that desolate orb The Cornhill Magazine

AN ANECDOTE OF TOM HOOD,-The genius of Tom Hood has been so generally acknowledged, his humor and his pathos so highly appreciated, and so many naecdotes recorded of him, that I shall only cite one of his sallics, which I believe has never been chronicled. At a large dinner-party nt Jerdan's, one of the guests indulged in some wonderful accounts o his shooting. The number of birds ho had killed, and the distances at which he had Frought them down, were extraordinary. Hood quietly remarked:

She can not walk or even stand, but is able to si: up in a chair. She has a good appetite, but does not sleep well. From facts and inform-ntion which seems reliable, Mary Ann must have been born previous to the year 1740, and was brought to the parish of St. Mary long be fore the old revolutionary war, nbout the year 1755, or before that date. Her husband, Bernard, died sixteen years ago. He was older than Mary Ann. He was forty years old und was brought from Africa in a slave years!

however, approaches within half n mile of it south shore, and in places the divide is very little above the lake. Its shape resembles the hroad hand of on honest German who has had his fore-linger and the two adjoining shot off at the second joint, while fighting for glory and Emperor William. The palm of the hand represents the main body, or north part of the lake. The fingers and thumb, spread to their ntmost extent-the thumb and little linger be ing much the langest—represent inlets ideating the south shore and stretching inland, as it n wish away the Rocky Mountains. Between these inlets project high, rocky promontories, covered with dense timber. The largest tream flows into the lake at its upper end or the extreme south east corner. This stream is really the Yellowstone River, which, for a distance of thirty miles, has an average width of over lifteen miles. This enlarge-ment coastitules the lake, which, after being augmented by several smaller streams, narrow down to the width of an eighth of a mile, and flows northward toward the great fall. There is a benutiful legend illustrating he blessedness of performing our duty nt what ever cost to our own inclinations. A benutiful vision of our Saviour had appeared to a monk, and in silent bliss he was gazing on it. The hour arrived at which he was to feed the poo of the convent. He lingered not in his cell to enjoy the vision, but left to perform his humble lity. When he returned he found the blessed vision still waiting for him, uttering these words: "Hadst thou staid, I must have fled."

Hair Vigor, For restoring Gray Hair to

A dressing which is at once agreeable, healthy, and effectual for preserving the hair. Faded or gray hair is soon restored to its original color with the gloss and freshness of youth.
Thin hair is thickened, falling hair cheeked, and baldness often, though uot always, cured by its use. Nothing cau restore the hair where the folicles are destroyed, or the glands atrophied and decayed. But such as remain can be saved for usefulness by this application. Instead of fouling the hair with a pasty sediment, it will keep it clean and vigorous. Its occasional use will prevent the hair from turning gray or falling off, and consequently prevent baldness. Free from those deleterious substances which make some preparations dangerous and injurious to the hair, the Vigor ean only benefit but not harm it. If wanted

Those familiar with the following gubernatorial canvass of 1859 will remember how the expenses figured in the sturne discussions, the present Democratic wit of that day leveled against !

The next general refitting of the mansion occurred in 1867. During the intervening twelve years the house had gone much to rack from ordinary wear and tear, and needed a thorough renovating to make it comfortable It needed a new roof, to be newly painted, inside and out, newly papered, and supplied with furniture and housekeeping articles of every kind. Out-buillings had to be repaired, and the lot fenced. Yet the whole was done at a cost of about $16,000; and there is not a not say it was well and cheaply done. As to practical man who, viewing the premises, will furniture, the house is not more expensively furnished than would have been done by any private gentleman, with an income equal to the Governor's sclary. Some chaptrap is all-pervading corruption of the Radical officials attempted over one or two items, such as a fifty at Washington to be informed that Col. $3,901 84. For reformishing the President's house $11,464 89.

Now, when it is remembered that when President Grant came into office, the White llouse was repaired and refurnished at an expense of nearly $100,000, and that the items in the last bill are in addition to the sums appropriated in the regular appropriation bill, it is very easy to see what the true l'adieal idea It The Tri-Weekly Kentucky Yeoman ts published every Tuesday, and Saturday, at Saturday, at Saturday, at Saturday, at Saturday, at Soldiars per annum, invariably in advance, the Weekly Yeoman is published every Fridative dollars and fifty cents per annum, in advances It PLiberal terms to Clubs. executive mansion; and yet, because it took $16,000 to refit the old mansion hero after a long season of neglect, the Democratic party

It was not until after an assurance was given by Mr. Smalley that he would not make any report for the press, of anything said by him, thut Mr. Stephens consented to talk to him a all, on public affairs.

Upon the repeated urgent wish of Mr. Smalley, that he might be permitted to give some account of the views expressed, Mr. Stephen gave full permission to him to refer to any written exposition of his views which had bee and was bred an "aristocrat." ble to health. On our way to Lexington, the first object o interest that attracted our attention was the somewhat ancient-locking, yellowish-colored monument, on the readside, in the outskirts of the handsome village of Midway. Upon inquiry, we found that it was intended to do honor to, and perpetuate the memory of, Col. W R. McKee, the founder of the town and one of the original projectors and builders of the Lexington, Frankfort and Louisville railroad.

During our ride thence to Lexington, we mado the pleasant chance acquaintanco of a gentleman of the vicinage, native to the beautiful region we were gliding through, who, being both an agriculturist and trader, was on his way to Lexington to "bear" the barley market, of which large quantities aro annually produced in Woodford, Scott, and adjacent counties, and sold in that city. Inquiring from him what sort of a place Leyington was, ho at once 'went off into heroics of eulogy' upon what seemed to be his favorite theme. After describing the city and its beautiful and historical surroundings, informing us that the time was, a great many years ago, when Lexington was a wholesale market to the merchants of Cincinnati, Louisville, and St. Louis, he wound up his culogium substantially thus: 'But, sir, the A Full ard Complete Assortment of crowning glory of Lexington is its magnificent court house, which, as you have doubtless heard, is the one in which Henry Clay achieved his first great oratorical triumphs, speak here on Monday next, county court and plumed his wings for those subsequent day, to give an account of his stewardship, loftier flights in the Congress of the Union, as also in regard to the pending canvass. The which won for him a world-wide admiration bare announcement will be enough to secure and lame. That court-house, sir, is, indeed, grand and tasteful in its proportions, and a monument to the liberality of the wealthy sovereigns of Payette county. It is, sir, in brief, the pride of Kentucky-a temple of justice worthy of the noble people whose ancestors constructed it, and of the proud Cap

A narrow log lay as a bridge over a ravine. From the opposite ends of the log, at the same moment, there started to cross it a big New-foundland and a little Italian greyhound. Of course they met in the middle; of course there was not room for them to pass; neither could they go back. The height was a dangerous one for the greyhound, and to the water at the bottom he was extremely averse. The New-foundland could have taken the leap in safety, but evidently did not want to. There was a fix! The little dog sat down on his hannehes face solemn with inward workings. Presently ho gave a undge with his nose to the howling greyhound, as if to say: "Be still, youngster, and lister." Then there was silence and seeming confabulation for a second or two. Immediately the big dog spread his legs wide apart like a Colossus, bestriding the log on its extreme outer edges, and balancing himself carefully. The little dog sprang through the opening like a flash. When they reached the opgambols of delight, and the Newfoundland, after his more sedate fashion, expressed great complacency in his achievement, as he surely HYDRATE OF CHLORAL .- Another death from the use of chloral is recorded as having taken place in New York on Monday. It is strange, says the World, how widespread is the delusion that this powerful and frequently unmanagen-ble drug is a safe and universal panacea. Men and women in any grade of life are forming the habit of using it without directions from a physician on the most trivial o eas on. Men use it to procure sleep, and women to calm their nerves. Its rapid action, and the fact that it does not leave behind it the usual reaction consequent upon the use of most narcoties, has given it a wonderful popularity. And yet both experience and the testimon of medical men have shown it to be extremely dangerous. The dose that may at one time no apparent harm, may work deadly mischief Prayer meeting—Friday, 7 P. Don't let working bours encroach five minutes on feed ing times. Always put a lighter load than that which you think the horse could pull at his best. Never check his head up before a load. Keep your lences good, and your colt will not learn to breach. Don't let shoes go until they fall off. Go ten miles to a good horse-shoer rather than one mile to a botch. If your horse is sick, and you are sure of the if the attack is beyond your knowledge, send to an experienced surgeon. Never let a quack into your stable. Ninety-nine out of every hundred colts, colies, heaves, blindnesses strains, spavins, enrbes, and other diseases and accidents to a horse, are eaused by gross neglect.

SALT roa llogs .- There is no doubt that the privation of salt is the cause of those violent and latal diseases which so frequently attack the hog-discuses which bafile all kinds of treatment. Salt has the property of preventing many of these diseases which appear suddenly and without apparent eause. Salt is one of the constituents of the blood, and it has been observed that in certain diseases (like the cholera) there is an absence of saline matter in the blood, and in these cases the blood is black; probably the fluidity of the blood, its stimulating qualities and the property it possesses of preserving itself, depends more or less upon these saline components. Those persons who put little or no salt into their own food are the most subject to worms. It is the same with animals. If the food be not regularly salted, salt should be kept near them.

An invention has recently heen made, and is being somewhat generally used, calculated to render timber more durable and last-It is termed an "ironizing process," by which, through some chemical agency, the perishable qualities of the wood are destroyed, and it is alleged renders it nearly as durable as stone. This will prove a valuable improve-ment, if successful, as is claimed, and will tend to render wood pavement more popular in finger. The following prescription is recom-mended as a sure cure for the distressing ailment: "Take common rock salt, such as is used for salting down pork or beef; dry it in an oven; then pound it fine and mix spirits of turpentine in equal parts. Put it in a rag, and wrap around the part affected, and as it gets dry put on more, and in twenty-four hours we me cured; the felon is dead." It will do no harm
